The region is literally a treasure trove of rare historical monuments. This small area features three sites included in the UNESCO, and you can admire the many Gothic sacral buildings and Renaissance belfries, castles, palaces and town halls. No matter which way you go, you will find beautiful sights at every corner. You can make use of signposts showing the gothic path ...

KEŽMAROK Historic monuments

1. Wooden Articular church (UNESCO)

The wooden Protestant church is a part of UNESCO heritage. The church is built in the style of folk Baroque. Huge painted dome is supported by four spiral columns and external walls. The ground floor and choirs can welcome more than 1,500 people.

2. New evangelical church in Kežmarok

In the second half of the 19th century Kežmarok Protestants decided to build a new, more representative temple. The building has no uniform building style. It contains elements of Byzantine, Romanesque, Renaissance, Moorish and even various oriental styles.

3. Evangelical Lyceum Kežmarok

The first reports on the existence of Kežmarok schools are from the years 1383 - 1392. After 1531 the school became Protestant grammar school in which academic classes with the departments of philosophy, law and theology were created, and thus the school changed into a lyceum. The Lyceum building features the largest school historical library in the Central Europe. The library has 150,000 volumes on all disciplines and in different languages.

4. Kežmarok Castle - Museum

The castle belongs to the type of the so-called town castles – it was built right in the city of Kežmarok in order to defend it against enemies. In the end, however, its owners fought against Kežmarok that did not want to give up its rights of a free royal town and become just an ordinary liege town. The last owner of the castle was Ferdinand Rueber from whom the city purchased the castle in 1702.

5. Roman - Catholic church St. Cross, Belfry in Kežmarok

St. Cross' origins date back to the Slavic settlement, as evidenced by the centuries-used name Windischgrund / Slavic lands /. The oldest stone parts of the church dates from the first half of the 13th century. The interior of the church is mostly Gothic - side altars, baptismal font, stallum. The Renaissance bench under the choir, where the city council with a mayor sat, is from 1518. Near the church there is the Renaissance bell tower from 1591, and is considered the most beautiful Spiš campanile.

6. Old Market - the oldest street in Kežmarok

The Old market is considered one of the oldest streets in Kežmarok - the majority of houses date from the 13th century. On the upper and lower end of the street are typical Spiš craft stores. Behind the craft stores is the torso of town fortifications. The house no. 39 is the place where students gathered – the members of a secret society Mor ho!, who were for their beliefs excluded from all Ungrian schools.

LEVOČA Historic monuments

7. Square of Master Paul

Is lined with imposing gothic and renaissance houses, mostly from the period of 14th - 15th century. The remainder for this famous period are the Thurzo House with renaissance attic and sgrafito, Large provincial house which belongs to one of most beautiful houses in the former Kingdom of Hungary, architecturally valuable Hain's House, Schwab palace with a remarkable arcade yard, Mariássy's House with a late gothic stone portal and Spillenbergs House decorated with shells. The square is dominated by the St. James's Church, Town Hall and the Evangelical Church. Favorite tourist attraction is the Cage of shame.

8. St. James's Church (UNESCO)

The town's treasure, the gothic monument of artistic and historical value, the largest sacral building on Spiš and the second largest monument in Slovakia. The actual sanctuary with the highest late gothic wooden wing altar in the world (height - 18.62 m, width - 6.27 meter) was created by the wood carver Master Paul from Levoča. With the collection of other wooden altars, rare wall paintings and other valuable furniture together with the work of Baroque goldsmith Ján Szilassy they belong to the national monuments.

9. Town hall

Was rebuilt to its present form in years 1893 – 1895. Above the Renaissance arcades on the southern facade of the building are painted allegorical figures representing the five civil virtues of year 1615 - carefulness bravery moderation, patience and justice. They depict female characters and several of the allegories are accompanied by inscriptions based on ideas of Humanism. Inside is a museum and one of its interesting expositions is also the picture of the legendary White Lady of Levoča and a piece of her dress.

10. The Cage of shame

Is a medieval hexagonal pillory which comes from the 16th century. It stands on a solid foundation next to the Town hall and is made of iron bars, decorated with hearts and shells. It was used for punishing people, serving their sentences for crimes against applicable laws and morality, excluding the capital punishments. In the same way they also punished women who went into the street during the night, unaccompanied by their men.

11. Master Paul's House

A museum is placed within this medieval gothic house with preserved gothic cusped portal and facade decorated with shells. It is dedicated to the life and work of one of the most important masters of late Gothic - carver Master Paul from Levoča and was recognized as an extraordinary contribution to the world cultural heritage.

12. Basilica of the Visitation of Virgin Mary on Marian hill

The church is an affiliate of the main Marian Basilica in Rome - the Basilica of Santa Maria Maggiore, with full rights and indulgences. Inside is situated an altar with a gothic statue of the Virgin Mary, that comes from the period around the year 1470. The way to the basilica is lined with lime alley, which was named after the Holy Father „Alley of John Paul II.“ based on the 10th anniversary of his visit. Parts of the alley are five chapels commemorating the people and events from the life of Virgin Mary.

13. SPIŠ CASTLE

The ruins of the castle that tower over the 200 m high travertine attract your attention from distant surroundings. The name of the county Spiš is derived from the name of this monumental building. The castle dates back to the mid 12th century although long before it there was a Celtic settlement, and later on a Slavic fortified settlement on the neighboring hill. To this date the castle still surprises with its monumental architecture and large surface area that ranks the castle among the largest in Europe. It was the seat of the main Spiš district administrators (also known as župans), and was inhabited until the end of the 17th century. Its owners - the family Csáky - then moved to more modern manor houses in Bijacovce, Hodkovce, and others.

14. SPIŠ KAPITULA

Spiš Kapitula, the clerical town with a characteristic Cathedral with two Romanesque towers, stands on the hill opposite the castle. Since 1776 it has been the seat of the Spiš bishopric. The most prominent relics are the Romanesque sculpture „White lion“, altar in the chapel Zápolský and wonderful renaissance epitaphs of Imrich and Štefan Zápolský.

15. SPIŠ JERUZALEM

In Spiš Kapitula and in the location called Pažica experts discovered the unique concept of the territory that looks like Jerusalem. The hypothesis on the existence of „Spiš Jerusalem“ was also confirmed by historians. This monument aimed to allow worshippers to experience a crusade in time when a pilgrimage to the Holy Land was problematic.

16. SPIŠSKÉ PODHRADIE

The area under the castle was a lively craft village. Since the 17th century there has been a hospital and a monastery of Merciful Brothers. From the rich interior of the Catholic church only a few paintings and a gothic baptistry have been preserved. The city used to be a home to over 600 Jews after whom only a synagogue remained.

17. ŽEHRA (UNESCO)

The village Žehra is an important archaeological site. The ancient early Gothic church of the Holy Spirit is to be found there. In its interior there are valuable Gothic sculptures from the early 15th century and stone baptismal font from the 13th century. In Hodkovce, the local area of Žehra, there is a baroque manor house from 1703 with a maintained French park. The park and a part of the manor house are opened to visitors although they serve as a social service house.

18. RENAISSANCE BELL TOWERS IN SPIŠ

Bell towers are robust tetrahedral buildings with huge windows shaped as towers from the Renaissance period. Although they were mostly built in the church area, they did not serve religious purposes. Cities and towns used them as watchtowers that alarmed the people when the city was in danger. These are unique buildings in Europe. You can find them for example in Kežmarok, Vrbov, Spišská Belá, Lubica, Poprad, Spišská Sobota, Podolíneč or Strážky.

More info about the project: <http://zvonice.nzv.sk/>

19. THE GOTHIC ROUTE

It is a thematic, cultural-educational route. It presents interesting and the most precious treasures of the Spiš-Gemer region in a comprehensive way. The route is divided into four sections - Spiš - Gemer, Pieniny, Tatras and Gemer - Rimava. The routes are marked with road signs and sites have information boards.

MUSEUMS AND GALLERIES

In typical villages of the region residents still follow their traditions and customs. During public holidays people dress in traditional costumes, and increasingly we can see nicely restored traditional wooden houses. Traditions are transferred into the daily lives of people who honor the work of their ancestors, and live in harmony with nature.

☼ 1. Ždiar, the Museum Ždiar House

Ždiar belongs to the jewels of Slovakia. It is a typical Tatran village with its traditions, customs, and folklore. Life, customs, and housing of Ždiar people can be seen at the local museum. In addition to interesting stories told by the museum's administrator dressed in a traditional costume, visitors can experience Ždiar wedding and dress up in a costume. Accompanying attractions include horse riding, local specialties tasting, or you can enjoy Goral music tones.

☼ 2. Osturňa, Folk Architecture Reserve

Osturňa village belongs to the protected zone of Pieniny National Park. The Folk Architecture Reserve has 157 buildings (barn) that are preserved in their original state. The village regularly organizes various folk and traditional events.

☼ 3. Pieniny, Dunajec rafting

Rafting on traditional wooden rafts down the river Dunajec canyon with guide's commentary is the greatest attraction of Zamagurie and Pieni-ny, and very authentic experience. From the raft port in Majere-Kvašne lúky to 11 km far Lesnica and from the port Červený Kláštor to 9 km far Lesnica you will experience an unusual voyage. In addition to the rafting the company also organizes other water sport activities with a picnic and refreshments.

☼ 4. Malá Franková, The Folk Museum of Glagolitic Alphabet

In addition to the lighted cross towering on the hill you will also find the only Slovak Folk Museum of the Glagolitic Alphabet, the so-called Ogród svätých sedmopočetníkov. In addition to the history of the first Slavonic writing there is information about the life of Cyril and Methodius and their disciples. The rarity of this area is the smallest wooden church in Slovakia which is a miniature of the now non-existent Christian church at Devin.

The area of Tatry, Pieniny, and Spiš is mountainous and full of mountains. People have made their living there out of sheep-farming and mountain fields cultivation. Since the immemorial times people have been growing corn, potatoes, and cereals. As the climate is mostly cold, the residents warmed themselves up with various liquors, hot tea and honey, feasted on fresh bread, local cheeses and sausages. Taste the local products - Tatra cheese, smoked bacon and sausages, tea from local herbs, crunchy bread or popular Tatra tea.

You will love local cuisine! Try it in these restaurants:

The region has more than three hundred km-long marked bike routes leading up the hills, through valleys, towns, and villages. Cyclists can find here everything; from wide flat asphalt routes to single trails, bike rentals and parks.

✿ 1. Spišská Belá – Tatranská Kotlina (trasa 2887)

Length: 9 km

Elevation: 110 m

Terrain and difficulty: easy asphalt 3 m wide bike path also suitable for children, children's chairs, in-line skates.

Description: the path connecting Spišská Bela and Tatranská Kotlina runs along the road I / 67. On the side-walk there are four major sheltered resting areas. You can refresh yourself at Belianske rybníky where you can find a playground and parking lot. All the way towards Tatranská Kotlina you can enjoy a beautiful view of the Belianské Tatras. In winter, the trail is used for cross-country skiing.

✿ 2. Zlatná – Kežmarok – Vrbov (route 5890)

Length: 11 km

Elevation: 120 m

Terrain and difficulty: leisure path leading partly through the mountains and partly through flat areas. The surface consists of asphalt, gravel and dirt road.

Description: well-marked bike route connects pond Zlatná with Kežmarok and Vrbov village. The route starts at the pond Zlatná and continues around the ranch Čajka, lodge and quarry up to Kežmarok where you can visit the old town with wooden articular church that is on the UNESCO list. From Kežmarok the route continues over the hill Ostrá skala from where you can enjoy a beautiful view of the Tatras and Levočské hills. The route ends in Vrbov where you can relax in the thermal spa.

✿ 3. Ždiar – Osturňa – Spišské Hanušovce (route 5865)

Length: 28 km

Elevation: 323 m

Terrain and difficulty: reinforced asphalt leisure - sports trail through the mountainous terrain with steep inclines.

Description: The trail begins a few meters beyond the village Ždiar at the intersection of the 1st class road no.67 with the forest road. There is a new asphalt bike path that will lead you through beautiful countryside to the village Osturňa - traditional folk architecture reservation. From there, the trail slightly decreases until you reach Veľká Franková where it begins to ascent steply up to Hanušovské sedlo. There again it descends to the village Spišské Hanušovce.

✿ 4. Pieninská cesta: Červený Kláštor – Lesnica (route 5864)

Length: 8 km

Elevation: 96 m

Terrain and difficulty: easy trail along the flat and paved asphalt surface suitable for children and baby carriages.

Description: The trail begins in Lesnica and runs along the river Dunajec. You can combine your biking with sailing on rafts and return on your bike back to Červený Kláštor. On the way there you should watch out for pedestrians. The trip is worth combining with a visit of the monastery, which is an interesting exhibition of the life of monks.

✿ 5. Kežmarok – Levoča (route 5860, 2894, 8906, 014)

Length: 25 km

Elevation: 290 m

Terrain and difficulty: partially reinforced asphalt leisure trail

Description: The trail begins in Kežmarok where it runs through Ľubica and Zálubica. Here it goes to the Levoča Hills - former military district Javorina, and continues through now non-existent village Ruskinovce, where still stands a small wooden church. The trail then ascends to Sedlo pod Krížovým vrchom from where only a descent along a paved road follows to the intersection heading to Levoča. Before entering Levoča you can relax by the water reservoir or make a detour to the Organic swimming-pool in Levočská Dolina.

✿ 6. Hrebeňovka Spišská Magura: Ždiar – Magurské sedlo (route 2870)

Length: 22 km

Elevation: 806 m

Terrain and difficulty: demanding route with high elevation mostly on unpaved surfaces

Description: The trail starts at the intersection of forest roads behind the village Ždiar in the ski area Strednica. From this point it leads to the ridge Spišská Magura up to Magurské sedlo. Along the way it meets the observation tower on a ridge and offers beautiful views of Belianské Tatras. It further continues to Toporecké sedlo down to the village Podolínec or Červený Kláštor.

✿ 7. Bike park SUN Bachledova

The Bike park in Bachledová dolina offers four routes of varying difficulty. Adrenaline lovers and downhill cycling enthusiasts will love it. The Bike park offers a fully equipped bicycle rental and facilities for cyclists. During the summer season the cableway runs from Bachledova dolina, and can ride the visitors up to the ridge Spišská Magura along with their bikes.

New for 2015 - a pump track situated at the cableway's exit station at the crest.

Like many Slovak regions this region is also emblazoned with legends, and these are the most famous of them. The locals will be happy to assure you that some of them are more true than it would seem.

LEGENDS

1. The Black Lady from Kežmarok

The legend of the Black Lady is about the castle's former caretaker that was in the service of the castle's owner Imre Thököly in the 90s of the 17th century. She guarded and protected the treasures of the owner when he fled from the imperial army. She, however, appropriated gems and treasures for herself. When Imrich Thököly returned to Kežmarok, he found that he lost his property and cursed the caretaker to never find peace on this earth. Since then, the Black Lady wanders around the black chambers of Kežmarok castle and looks for another hidden location to hide her treasure....

2. The legend of the White Lady of Levoča

The legend dates back to the early 18th century, time of anti-Habsburg uprising lead by Francis II Rákóczi. Júlia Göczy Korponay comes to Levoča as a wife of one of the Kuruc commanders and at the same time serves as a spy for the enemy's imperial army. Out of fear that her assets can be confiscated, she becomes a mistress for the Commander of Kuruc armies – István Andrásy. She steals keys from him and leads the imperial army through the secret underground passage door into the city. Her merits are forgotten and her betrayal is punished by decapitation. Historical documents however show that the city surrendered based on an agreement and Juliana was just a victim of plotting. She was nicknamed -white lady by a writer Mór Jókai in a novel of the same name, probably because of the dress she wears on her portrait.

3. The Legend of Flying Cyprian

Monk Cyprian was a very wise man, but his spirit was unhappy and thought a lot about flying. In dreams angels often warned him to let it be, but in vain. He made himself a pair of wings to fly, and one dark night he took off from Koruna to the south and flew up to the Tatras. He floated above Morské oko, and his image mirrored on the surface of the lake. Then he caught sight of an angel who ignited a storm, struck him with a lightning and knocked him over on the side of the lake. At that place a hill grew that became a tombstone of the courageous aviator. For those who want to see a face, habit's contours, and broken arms that wanted to fly high, they became visible after looking long enough at a hill „Mních (Monk)". The cursed aviator carries a huge debit and suffers in eternal stone captivity.

(Friar Cyprian's real name is Franz Ignatz Jäschke. He came to Camaldulsián Červený Kláštor when he was 32 years old, and was considered a master of a thousand handicrafts. He was skilled not only in medicine but also in botany, astrology, and was a skilled glassblower.

4. The Legend of a coalman from Ždiar

The dense forests in a broad valley of Biela creek under Belianske Tatras were often visited by people from nearby villages to make charcoal. One of the workers built a small cottage in the middle of the forest. The only window of the wooden house was facing the side from which a bright light of the morning star (zornička) was shining inside. The coalman's house was soon joined by others who also fell in love with that star. The settlement was thus named „Zor „-Ždiar after the morning star.

5. Chmúrník from Osturňa

In the deep mountains there is an ancient village under the Tatras, Osturňa, where even today some people believe in witches and in people of gloom called "Chmurovia" who visit the locals ..

These Chmurovia look terribly repellent, but can take the form of any human being, and often ask for food or lodging. According to the legend the locals shall meet Chmúrník's needs because a good deed is always repaid.
